Overview

Health care is the most heavily regulated industry in America with overlapping federal and state statutes, and administrative regulation by an array of government agencies, covering every aspect of a health care entity's operations, plus additional regulations of all professionals and technicians by various licensing boards.

As Co-Chair of the firm's Healthcare Law Group, and with a Graduate Certificate in Healthcare Law Compliance, Dennis is our lead attorney for representing clients in the healthcare industry. Dennis has over two decades of experience in representing various types of healthcare and related companies, as well as individual professionals, including management and billing service providers, third party administrators, industry trade associations, group purchasing organizations, surgical and imaging centers, laboratories and all other types of licensed healthcare facilities, medical groups, physicians, and other healthcare professionals.

Dennis is a member of the American Health Lawyers Association and the New Jersey State Bar, Health and Hospital Law and Employment Law.
